COMMENTARY@Million Doll

[Usage Guidelines]
This board is where the "Ridiculous Idol DD" editor will loosely explain the terminology that appears in Million Doll. These are extremely subjective definitions, so at times they will differ from the real definition. We recommend not taking them too seriously.

[1:1] ◆ Million Doll Wota Terminology ◆

1: Festival Performance [Wota Side]

In this chapter, the wotas startle Mariko by offering her their credit cards.
These group acts are fairly common, and are meant to get a reaction out of the idol.

At last year's joint idol festival, there was someone at the back of the audience who was lifted up on a bicycle - something that had never been seen before.

That wotagei was named the "cha-lift" ("chari" = bicycle) and was one of the hottest topics online for the duration of the festival.

Are these things a display of their love?
Or are they totally overdoing it?
These excessive, borderline-acceptable forms of support can occasionally have even more impact than the idols' performances themselves.

Referenced Songs Commentary

Million Doll values having a link to the real world industry in its setting

One part of that link is selecting songs by real artists to reference in the story (JASRAC license to use the copyrighted lyrics has been acquired)

This page will provide some commentary on one of the referenced songs.

COMMENT

Million Doll Ch.8 Song Commentary: "Sadistic Pink" - Shiina Hekiru (2002)

Continuing from last time, I chose another song by Shiina Hekiru, the inspiration for Mariko's character. This one is the title song of her album "Sadistic Pink". When performed live, you can feel the obsession and power in the song, and I wanted Mariko to dash forward with the same image of a powerful woman.

I modified the words to be more normal and less tsundere, but the song itself is one that I really love, because of its confident lyrics and fast pace, which are lavished with a pop-genre appeal. I feel that it represents the type of girl that the present era is searching for.
